TWO MISSING GIRLS FEARED KIDNAPED

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

The other day a roughly dressed man, who slaughtered the English language every time he opened his mouth, dropped into a certain business house on Macdonald avenue.

* * * *

"I'm from the So-and-So safe company," he told the manager of the firm. "My boss told me to come out and see if I could service youse guys' safe. Can I take a look at it?"

* * * *

The manager, who became quite suspicious of the visitor declared that the safe was all right and that it had never given them any trouble.

* * * *

However, the visitor insisted that he be given a chance to oil the safe, or change the combination. He became insistent and started to walk toward the safe.

* * * *

At that juncture one of the persons in the office picked up the telephone and called the police. When the man heard the number called however, he wheeled and ran out of the office before he could be stopped.

* * * *

As a result, if any of you readers own a safe, look out for a safe "fixer."

* * * *

We are told the other night Bill Crangle, one of the policemen found three bodies behind a certain business house here.

* * * *

Bill immediately called the police station and informed the desk sergeant of the discovery.

* * * *

But, however, the desk sergeant yawned, and replied he would inform the pound master.

* * * *

It seems that the three bodies Bill found were those of cats. Whether they were killed in a fight or had eaten poison, no one knows, and no one cares enough about it to find out.

* * * *

Two certain members of the American Legion football team have taken a vow that they will not shave until their team wins a game.

So if you should see two bearded men walking down the street, retain your sympathy —for it will only mean that the local team hasn't won its football game.

QUARRY BLAST HERE TO AID QUAKE STUDY

An explosion that will aid in the study of earthquakes will be set off sometime today at the Blake Brothers' quarry on the Richmond waterfront.

Fourteen tons of "ten percent" powder will be set off at the quarry today, an explosion that is expected to shatter a large part of a hill at the site.

When the switch is pulled, igniting the powder, the fact will be recorded immediately at the University of California. Scientist, stopwatch in hand, will then anxiously watch the seismograph, the apparatus for recording earthquakes. The shock of the blast will be recorded upon the delicate instrument.

Savants will then study the time elapsed between the actual setting off of the blast and the time taken for the shock to be recorded.

Through this study, valuable information may be learned by the 'quake specialists.

John Rasmussen, superintendent of the local quarry stated last night that the blast will be comparitively small, considering the size of some of the blasting done at the quarry.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 24.—UP —A group of Federalist generals deserted today and seized control of Rio De Janeiro for the revolution. Immediately, scores of thousands of people surged through the streets wrecking pro-government newspaper plants and cheering the revolution.

The government headed by President Luis was overthrown. The elderly president was declared held a virtual prisoner at Guanabara palace, but stubbornly refusing to resign.

There was great confusion as rumors filled the capital. It had been reported previously that President Luis submitted his resignation when faced with an ultimatum from the leaders of the coup d'etat.

Capital Siezed

The outstanding fact to the populace, however, was the seizure of the capital by the Revolutionaries, and the streets had the aspect of a carnval. People paraded joyfully through the broad avenues of this beautiful part, many hysterical with excitement.

Half a dozen pro-government newspapers were attacked. The luxurious plant of the newspaper A Noite, in its 23-story building—the tallest on the continent—was sacked and the building badly dam-

Inman For Congress

State Senator J. M. Inman of Sacramento, who has an outstanding record for sixteen years of accomplishment in the state legislature, of which any man might well be proud, is a write-in candidate for congressman of the Third district at the election to be held November Fourth.

He has a record that is not surpassed by any other member of the Senate, and it is upon that record that he is making his campaign for the position which he seeks.

The RECORD-HERALD is for Inman, and urges the people of this county to write-in his name, because it feels that with his long experience in legislative matters, he is best fitted for the position.

Although he has been in the campaign but a little over a week, the support that has rallied to him in the six counties of the district is marvelous. It shows the confidence that the people have in him.

The candidate is one of those tenacious fighters who battles for the things he believes to be right, and he is just as vigorous in opposition to those things that he believes to be wrong. He has proven to be a faithful representative of the people, and is willing at all times to fight for principle.

Inman is one of the outstanding men of the Senate, and is thoroughly conversant with the needs of the counties of the district. He is for the upbuilding and development of the district in every manner. He stands for the further development of Richmond's harbor.

Inman has been spending part of the week in this county, and has met many. To meet him convinces you that you are meeting a man of action, power, and character.

Some of ehe outstanding work of Inman in the legislature is that he was the author of the California anti-alien land legislation, the author of the indeterminate sentence law, the author of aid to crippled children and other humanitarian legislation. He is the chairman of the Senate Finance committee, and the acting chairman of the Senate Judiciary committee, the two important committees of the Senate. He was formerly an inheritance tax appraiser, and is also a veteran of the world's war.

There is no man better fitted to care for the needs of the Third Congressional district than Inman.

When you go to the polls next Tuesday and vote for congressman, write-in the name "J. M. INMAN."

80,000 WILL SEE GRID CLASSIC

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—UP—Traditional rivalries inspired four of the best football teams on the Pacific coast tonight and made them willing to pay any price for victory when they enter stadiums solidly banked with colorful throngs Saturday.

The University of Southern California and Stanford renew old hostilities before 88,000 spectators at Palo Alto. More than 40,000 partisan fans will be assembled at Seattle when California opposes Washington.

Of the three undefeated teams in the far west, Stanford alone expects a hard fight. Washington State college leading the Pacific Coast conference with victories over California and U. S. C., meets Montana. Oregon, triumphant over Washington, is a strong favorite to beat Idaho.

Stanford Game

The most complicated attacks ever used on the Pacific coast, and possibly in the nation, will be seen in Stanford stadium. When the Cardinals of Stanford and Trojans of U. S. C. first met they were equipped with a dozen simple power plays and two or three tricks to use only when the regulars failed. This year each team has been trained in nearly 50 plays, and a vast majority of them are deceptive.

So far advanced are the Cardinals that they have two formations. The line plunging attack starts from formation "A" and the open offensive is conducted from formation "C." The latter resembles somewhat a punt formation, with a balanced line and both half backs in position to take the ball on a snap back.

If Coach Glenn Warner of Stanford and Coach Howard Jones of U. S. C. could call each signal from the sidelines a good guess would be that the contest would end in a tie. Since they cannot, the belief prevails that the best field generals, Harlow Rothert and Phil Moffatt of the Cardinals or Marshall Duffield and Orv Mohler of the Trojans will be on the winning team. By every comparision there is not enough difference between the two elevens to give either a pronounced advantage. Fair weather is predicted for the game.

Gaels To Play

Two individuals will be watched closely at Seattle. Henry Schaldach, half back, has the heaviest assignment on the California team and Merle Hufford, all-American last year, is Washington's ace. Each has been injured in recent weeks but are pronounced fit for tomorrow's battle. California has been spectacular one Saturday and weak the next since the season started. The Bears are due to be good against Washington, but the weather man says they will be handicapped by rain.

The four conference games are the only ones of importance on the far west schedule tomorrow.

Sunday St. Mary's of Moraga will meet Gonzaga of Spokane here. The Saints are favored to win as they please.

Pullmans Will Meet Firemen

Oakland Winter baseball league contest is scheduled to be played on the Albany diamond tomorrow afternoon. This clash will be between the Pullman Service Station nine and the Oakland Firemen. It will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

The Pullmans will have plenty of opposition tomorrow in the Oakland Firemen. The firefighters were only downed last week-end by the Y. M. I. by a score of 2 to 1, and should present a fast brand of baseball tomorrow. However, the service station outfit has polished up considerably since last week-end, and should be able to hold up its end of the contest.

Santa Clara In Victory Over Clubmen

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—UP—Hard driving backs of Santa Clara university gained consistently against the Olympic Club of San Francisco, an organization of former university stars, here today and won by the score of 14 to 2.

The Club made a number of costly mistakes, losing the ball three times on five fumbles and letting the Broncos intercept passes, but Santa Clara showed distinct superiority in offensive, making 12 first downs against seven for the club.

The first touchdown was made in the second quarter when Bob Stockton, Santa Clara fullback, went off right tackle, slipped away from three tacklers, and ran 19 yards to the goal line. Herman Mettler, star half back, converted.

Santa Clara made it 13 to 0 in the fourth quarter after George Fortier had intercepted an Olympic Club pass on the 30-yard line. Six line plunges by Chris Machado, half back, and Mettler, carried the ball to the Club's six-yard line and then Mettler went around left end for the touchdown. The extra point was again added by Mettler.

Shortly before the game ended an attempted punt by Mettler was blocked and the ball bounced outside Santa Clara's end zone to give Olympic Club a safety.

Joy Ride Planes May Be Barred

SALEM, Ore., Oct. 24.—UP—Suggestions at a conference of aeronautic officials here Thursday intimated that commercial "joy hopping" airplanes might be banned entirely at Oregon beaches.

"Joy hopping" is the term applied to short pleasure trips in airplanes now much in vogue at leading beaches, it was explained. Members of the State Board of Aeronautics at today's meeting said these short trips in planes were the source of most of the criticism against beach flying.

Hal E. Hoss, secretary of state, said that the legislature would be asked to pass a law providing for landing places for airplanes at beaches. These landing areas, it was suggested, would be marked off and policed, and anyone venturing upon them would do so at their own risk.

ANGELS DEFEAT STARS IN THIRD

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24.—UP—A home run by Wes Schulmerich, bulky Los Angeles' outfielder, brought in the two scores that gave the Angels an 11 to 10 victory over Hollywood in the third game of their post-season playoff series today.

It was another free-hitting affair and saw Los Angeles come back after trailing, 8 to 0 in the second inning. As a result, Hollywood now holds a two game to one lead over Los Angeles in the series. The first team to win four games wins the 1930 Pacific Coast league championship. Each won a half of the regular season.

The Stars had a 10 to 2 lead when Los Angeles came to bat in the last of the seventh. But the Angels got five runs in that inning with the aid of a home run by Statz and four more in the eighth, a home run by Schulmerich aiding.

In the second, when Hollywood got eight runs, a home run by Dave Barbee scored three men ahead.

Los Angeles used three pitchers, Horne, Peters and Delaney, Hollywood used the same number, Wetzel, Johns and Page.

With the three home runs today, 16 have been hit in three games. There were six yesterday and seven Wednesday.

Hollywood got 14 hits and Los Angeles 13.

The Hollywood club staged a batting spree in the second which started the scoring for the day with eight runs and drove pitcher Horne from the mound.

Los Angeles got a run in the last of the third after two were out when Harper singled and scored on Moore's double.

The Angels got another in the fourth to make it 8 to 2. Jacobs singled, Statz went out infield, Dittmar singled, putting Jacobs on third, and then Jacobs scored on a double steal.

In the first of the seventh, Hollywood got two more runs to make the score 10 to 2. Heath singled. After Severeid flied out, Hill singled, Heath taking third. Wetzel singled off the left field wall scoring Heath and Hill.

Los Angeles went on a spree in its half of the seventh and got five runs, principally through the home run from the bat of Statz, which accounted for three. They then trailed 10 to 7.

The Angeles continued their advance in the last of the eighth and went into the lead, 11 to 10. A home run by Schulmerich helped get the four runs.

High School Eleven Beaten By Berkeley In A.A.L. Opening

The dreaded Yellow Jackets of Berkeley high school swept over the warriors of Richmond union high school to a 34 to 6 victory, yesterday afternoon on the Richmond high field.

The Berkeley pigskin toters were unstoppable yesterday. The Richmond defense attempting to hold their fast charging opponents in vain, and were continually baffled by the well-screened plays that gained long yardage for Berkeley. The locals battled desperately, but they were plainly outplayed.

Richmond made its lone touchdown in the second quarter, when Ed Musek, halfback, crashed through the line from Berkeley's one yard line. Scarsella, quarterback, failed to convert.

Scores Fast

Berkeley high scored two touchdowns during the first quarter. The Richmond athletes seemed to be unable to comprehend the sudden onslaught of the Berkeleyans during this first period. Wastman kicked off to Berkeley's 20 yard line and the ball was brought back to Berkeley's 40 yard line by "Chile" Bertoli. Berkeley successively reached the 50 yard and Richmond's 35 yard line on clockwork drives. Bertoli then got away for a beautiful dun to Richmond's 12 yard line. The Berkeley boys battered through to the five yard line. Bertoli finally took the ball over the line for a touchdown on the third down. Bertoli converted.

Bertoli kicked off to almost Richmond's goal line, where the ball was nabbed by Scarsella. Scarsella came to his own 25 yard line before being downed. Richmond lost several yards on a couple of plays, and a Richmond fumble was then recovered by Berkeley on the locals' 15 yard line. Bertoli toted the ball to the eight and then to the two yard line. Bertoli again went over for a touchdown, and once more convearted. Berkeley kicked off to Richmond's 35 yard line, where Baxter grabbed the ball and was downed as the quarter ended.

Richmond was unable to make yardage, and Baskett kicked to Berkeley's 20 yard line. Bertoli made a brilliant end run, with good interference, to his own 40 yard line. Benny Hoeffer of Richmond recovered a fumble by Berkeley on the 23 yard line. This began Richmond's march to a touchdown. Masek threw a long pass to Scarsella on Berkeley's 15 yard line. Masek plunged through the center to the 12 yard line for first down. A five yard penalty brought the ball to the seven yard line. The Richmond backfield smashed through to the five yard line. Once more Masek gained downs on reaching the two yard line. He then went through for a score on a line plunge. Scarsella failed to convert.

75-Yard Run

Westman kicked off to Berkeley's 35 yard line. After an unsuccessful pass by Bertoli, Hector, Berkeley fullback, slipped around left end to get away for a sensational 75-yard run to a touchdown. Berkeley failed to convert. Berkeley kicked off to Richmond's 20 yard line, and the ball was brought to the local's 32 yard line. A pass by Richmond was intercepted by Wickstrom about the 50 yard line. After a loss of five yards, Berkeley shoved through to Richmond's 45 yard zone. A Berkeley pass was then intercepted by Brignone, Richmond center, just before the whistle for the half blew.

Richmond kicked off in the third quarter to Berkeley's 38 yard line. Ball, Richmond tackle, recovered a Berkeley fumble on the 35 yard line. Richmond lost the ball on downs. Berkeley reached the locals' 40 yard line on a series of fast plays. The visitors kicked over the Richmond goal line.

Merle Baskett, Richmond fullback, kicked to Berkeley's 40 yard line. Bertoli circled Richmond's left end to reach the locals' 28 yard line. Bertoli then plunged over tackle for another touchdown. He converted.

Pass Scores

Berkeley kicked off to Scarsella, who came to his own 20 yard line and fumbled, Berkeley recovering. Berkeley passed to the 15 yard line as the third quarter ended.

As soon as the final period began, a pass over the goal line from Bertoli to Bill Dutton, Berkeley end, resulted in another touchdown for the invading Yellow Jackets. Bertoli converted. Berkeley kicked off to Richmond's 35 yard line. The Richmond backfield drove through for downs to its own 45 yard line. Baskett then drove through to the 50 yard zone, then to the 45 yard line, and there Richmond was stopped. Baskett kicked to Berkeley's 20 yard line. Vallejo, tricky Berkeley halfback, raced around end to Richmond's 45 yard line. Berkeley reached the local's 18 yard line on several plays, and failed to go farther.

Jack Stoddard, Richmond, halfback passed to Scarsella to his own 45 yard line. An end run by Scarsella brought the ball to Berkeley's 42 yard line. Richmond attempted several unsuccessful passes, and finally lost the ball on downs on the 50 yard line.

Vallejo again performed one of his fast end runs, this time reaching Richmond's 30 yard line. The Richmond line held their opponents for no downs, and reached its own 49 yard line on several drives. A Richmond pass was intercepted by Berkeley and the ball was carried to the locals' 20 yarl line, where the contest ended.

Thrill Game

Yesterday's battle was a game of many thrilling runs, fine punting and smashing line plunges. Bertoli was undoubtedly the star of the Berkeley eleven and of the game. The entire Berkeley team worked with a unison seldom seen in a high school team.

Although rather badly beaten, the local athletes showed many spurts of individual brilliance. At times they beat Berkeley at its own game of line smashing and line holding, but they seemed to lack the versatility of attack possessed by Berkeley.

The Richmond backfield showed plenty of fire yesterday. Masek displayed his usual speed at halfback in his first game played in more than a month. He has been unable to play until yesterday because of injuries. He was again injured yesterday.

He worked well with Scarsella. Merle Baskett, fullback, yesterday displayed even greater drive than he had shown previous to the Berkeley game. He was one of Richmond's best yard gainers against the Yellow Jackets. Stoddard played a consistent game at quarterback. Action was also seen in the backfield yesterday by Snodgrass, George Miller, and Bob Miller.

Good Attack

The Richmond team stood up fairly well against the teriffic Berkeley attack, and began to function to better advantage in the last half. Ed Westman, tackle, was a strong asset to the Richmond line, while Ball, tackle, managed to wedge himself through the opposing line time after time to smear an attack. Lilly also did well at tackle. Big Benny Hoeffer showed himself as a hard man to get past at guard, with a strong half at the pivot position, tackling hard, while diminutive Clarence Hall supported the center of the line well during the last half, in spite of his lack of weight. A new force was seen in Gerletti at end. Gerletti, was green material this year, and was rather lost during the first games of the season. However, he displayed his true speed at the end yesterday for the first time this season. He promises to be good material for future seasons. Juillerat, Passoni, Carl Drexel, veterans all, and Pizialli a hard-tackling sophomore, also held down the end positions for Richmond yesterday.

Yesterday's game with Berkeley was the opening contest of the Alameda County Athletic league 1930 football season. The next game will be played against Piedmont, probably there.

The Lineups

The complete lineup for Richmond Union high school yesterday was as follows: Gerletti, Juillerat, ends; Westman, Lilly, tackles; Baxter Hoeffer, guards; Brignone, center; Masek, Scarsella, halfbacks; Stoddard, quarterback; Baskett fullback; substitutes—Ball, Corazzo, Hall, Snodgrass, Passoni, G. Miller C. Drexel, Klobas, Pizialli, Davilla, Robak and Polesi.

The lineup for Berkeley high school yesterday was as follows: Mueller Kendall, ends; Burri, Beedy, guards; Dennis, Gustafson tackles; Ball, center; Capt. Bertoli, Wallace, halfbacks; Hector, fullback; Newman, quarterback; substitutes— Stevenson, Ransome, Rowneberg, Goodrich, Wickstrom, Luther, Chase, Brant, Leggett, Vallejo and Kirkman.

PRE-GAME COMPARISON of Stanford and University of Southern California football teams leaves one big question: Who will accomplish the most, Orv Mohler (holding ball) of U. S. C. or Phil Moffatt, Stanford? Southern Californians rate Mohler better than Kaer, Drury or Saunders. Northern Californians say Moffatt "is perfect in every motion." Mohler has made six touchdowns this season; Moffatt has made five.

New Record Is Made In High Grid Contest

The football used in Berkeley-Richmond game yesterday, which the latter high school lost 32 to 6 did not go out of bounds one time during the entire first part of the game.

That is believed to be a world's record, by Clare Horner, umpire during the contest.

During the entire game the ball was called out of bounds only five times, which in itself is also a record, it is believed. The five touchdowns made by the Berkeley squad was also lauded as a feat seldom seen on bay gridirons when high school athletes are the contestants.

BEBE DANIELS SCORES HIT IN FILM

After seeing Bebe Daniels, Radio Picture star, in "Lawful Larceny" an all-talking drama, one wonders whether or not she is greater in singing roles than "straight" parts. In either she is too delightful to miss.

In this production, now at the Fox-California theater, she appears in a new and charming role, that of a wife. With Miss Daniels as "the wife," it is rather difficult to understand why the husband "falls" for another woman—but that's part of the story, and it is a most entertaining one.

The plot is novel and filled with intriguing situations. The supporting cast includes Lowell Sherman, who scored such a hit in RKO's "He Knew Women"; Olive Tell, Kenneth Thomson and Purnell Pratt, all former favorites of the legitimate stage.

Sherman directed the production aided by his experienced as leading man in the original stage play.

AL JOLSON FILM WILL BE SHOWN

A new Jolson picture, "Big Boy" adapted from the star's greatest stage success of the same name, will open at the Fox-California theater tomorrow.

This is a stirring comedy centered about the Kentucky Derby, American racing classic, in which Jolson plays the part of a colored jockey with all his old abandon and originaity.

Four new song hits are included in "Big Boy" as well as a generous supply of Jolson stories and Jolson jokes—told only as Jolson can tell them.

Warner Brothers have assembled a remarkable cast to support the black face star in "Big Boy" including Claudia Dell, Louise Closser Hale, Llody Huges, Eddie Phillips, Lew Harvey, Franklin Batie, and John Harron. Claudia Dell plays the leading role and John Harron has the role of the young man in love with Claudia. Franklin Batie has the same screen role that he played with Jolson in the stage play.

Alan Crosland directed "Big Boy" Harold Attridge is the author of the original play which was adapted to the screen by William K. Wells and Perry Vekroff.

Swords Preferred By Swedish Police

SSTOCKHOLM—The sword is a better weapon than the night stick Stockholm policemen have decided and after using the billy for some years they will now be armed with sabres again, at least on certain detail service.

Complaints from patrolmen have been very frequent, the officers charging that the night stick was insufficient in coping with obstinate offenders, that its radius of defense was too narrow and that it was not at all as awe-inspiring as a glistening sword.

The policemen therefore have greeted with satisfaction the order reinstating their former weapon.

KING BORIS TO CLAIM BRIDE TODAY

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 24.—UP—A thousand bonfires dotted the Umbrian hills around Assisi tonight and the age-old village of St. Francis, nestling on the slope of Mount Subasio, lay like a fairy picture on the eve of the wedding of the dark-eyed princess Giovanna and King Boris III of Bulgaria.

Low in the sky, just above the rim of hills to the east, the new moon hung like a silver sickle, and in the ancient streets of Assisi 40,000 torchlights sent a golden glow into the heavens.

In this fantastic setting Europe's wandering bachelor king will tomorrow morning take to wife the daughter of the King of Italy. The ceremony will take place at the Church of St. Francis and the nobility of the two nations will attend in force.

The wedding party, ith its kings and queens, its princes and princesses, its dukes and duchesses, awaited tonight at nearby Peruci, and will move into Assisi by train just before the hour for the ceremony Premier Mussolini, with members of his cabinet, will come down from the palatial Villa Venanzi where, tonight, he is a guest.

A hundred automobiles will move from the railway station through solid lines of troops to the ancient Basilica. The wedding ceremony, itself, will be the essence of simplicity.

Tonight, in contrast to the riotous festivities in the village, all was peacefully quiet at the Franciscan Basilica, the 700-year old church where the wedding is to take place. The good Friars padded softly through the shadows, going about their customary duties, unmindful and undisturbed.

At the crypt where the bones of St. Francis are preserved, hundreds of outsiders, many of them soldiers, came to pray. But their coming was quiet and orderly. There was no disturbance at the Basilica.

The streets are hung with myriads of flags, the Bulgarian colors mixed with the Italian. The village is hopelessly overcrowded and there were few who slept tonight.

Felon Promises To Break Jail

EAU CLAIRE, Wis.—Actions speak louder than words thinks George Stubblefield, alias Robert Johns, who was identified as the man who held up the Foster state bank in June. On being introduced to the county jail here he exclaimed, "What a crackerbox! "When that statement failed to impress he added "Anyone could get out of here." Nevertheless the sheriff took no extra precautions and placed Stubblefield in an ordinary cell. Somewhat piqued at this treatment, Stubblefield bided his time and the next evening forced a lock on his cell and walked away leaving no clues as to his destination. Stubblefield had been arrested after shooting up a restaurant here.

Peach Favored Bacon And Ham

HANFORD—Peach-flavored bacon and ham may be the next thing!

California's epach crop is so heavy this year that thousands of tons are being permitted to stay on the trees.

As a result, some ranchers are making the most of a bad situation and turning their hogs loose in the peach orchards.

Despite the abundance of peaches and the low orchard price, growers of the fruit say the regular retail market price for their product in Los Angeles is 8 1-3 cents a pound, or $166.66 a ton.

NEW METHOD OF BROADCASTING SHOWN

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—UP—A revolutionary radio principle to create room in the air for hundreds of additional broadcasting stations in the United States was demonstrated successfully here tonight.

The inventor was Dr. James Robison, noted British scientist presenting the first full public explanation of his stenode radiostat.

From the principle which he first hinted at one year ago, he has developed a series of inventions which upset not only theories in the field of radio broadcasting, but ideas that have been accepted as facts in the realms of tellevision, land communications and sound.

Experts Present

The radio broadcasting receiving application, however, was the only one he demonstrated, because his audience was limited to experts in that industry.

For one hour Dr. Robinson demonstrated and explained how he proposes to create blank spaces between existing radio broadcasting channels into which can be fitted at least double the present number of stations, perhaps nine times as many.

Dr. Robinson's principle holds that there is a basic error in the time-worn idea that a separation of ten kilocycles is required between the wave lengths of radio stations to prevent one from interfering with another.

Old Principle

His theory is carried out in the stenode radiostat, the ultimate perfection of which he contends will give radios a selectivity ten times as great as at present.

The heart of his principle is the quartz crystal, the same mineral that made radio receivers widely possible before the vacuum tube.

This he uses in such a way as to admit a broadcasting band one-third as wide as that which other engineers hold necessary to maintain the quality of the reproduced sound.

Those who attended his demonstration could not detect any difference in the quality of the music that came through his radiostat. Dr. Robinson contends further that the sensitivity of a radio is not impaired by use of his method.

"The principle," said Arthur H. Lynch, editor of Radio News, "will mean even more to home television than to radio broadcasting. Today a television station takes up as much room in the ether as ten broadcasting stations. Dr. Robinson's invention reduces this to one and one-half."

ECLIPSE PHOTO MAY SETTLE DISPUTE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—UP—New light on Einstein's theory of relativity, increased knowledge of the structure of the outer layer of the sun, a better understanding of what happens to the earth's electricity in darkness—these are some of the results that may come out of the eclipse expeditions to the tiny island of Niuafou, in the south Pacific ocean.

Two parties of scientists, one American and sponsored by the U. S. Naval Observatory here, the other from the Dominion Observatory of New Zealand, traveled to this isolated spot for observations that can only be made at the rare moments of a total eclipse, when the sun hides behind the moon.

Radio reports from the island to Washington indicate that the observations on Wednesday morning, (Tuesday here) were completely successful. Even though it rained an hour before, the sky was quite clear at the crucial time, only a thin haze remaining. This haze was not sufficient to interfere with the photographs of the corona, the wings of light surrounding the sun that can only be observed at eclipse time. Perhaps some of the fainter stars on the Einstein plates may prove to have been obscured, but even this is not likely to interfere greatly with their value.

Many months of study will be required to wrest from these plates their secrets. According to Einstein's theory of relativity, as proposed in 1915, the ray of light from a distant star is pulled towards the sun as it passes that body.

As a result, if one photographs a field of stars at night, and again when the sun is among them, the stars on the latter plate should appear farther from the place occupied by the sun than in the former plate. But stars cannot ordinarily be photographed so close to the sun. Only when an eclipse occurs, and the moon hides the sun's brilliant glare, can such photographs be made. Though the effect was first verified by a british eclipse expedition to Brazil in 1919 and again by an American party to Australia in 1922, still further measurements are desirable. After the plates are brought back to the United States they will be compared with other plates of the same region made when the sun is in another part of the sky.

From photographs made of the flash spectrum of the last sliver of sunlight visible just before totality begins and just after it ends, Dr. Samuel A. Mitchell, of the University of Virginia, who was scientific head of the American party, hopes to learn more about the behavior of the atoms in the sun's chromosphere. This is the outer layer that we ordinarily see.

Authority Of Music To Give Lecture At U. C.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24.—Dr. Greta Gray, associate professor of home economics at the University of California at Los Angeles, addressed a meeting in Fresno recently of the Pacific Coast section of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, her subject being "The Industrial Revolution and the Household." Dr. Gray has spoken on two previous occasions at the national meeting of this society.

She is an authority on economic problems of the household and on houseing and equipment in relation to efficiency in work. She is a graduate in architecture from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and completed her graduation work at Yale University in the school of public health.

Before coming to the University of California at Los Angeles in 1928 she had conducted extensive research for the National Home Economics Bureau on efficient kitchens and had spent three years at the University of Nebraska investigating household problems throughout that state. Dr. Gray is the author of the text "House and Home," and of numerous papers published in scientific journals.

U. C. Extension Courses Grow

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24.—A total of 3043 people have enrolled in classes offered by the extension division of the University of California, in Los Angeles, during the quarter-year from July 1 to October 1, according to announcement by acting director B. B. Rakestraw. The total is slightly in excess of the figure for the same period in 1929, and it is believed to be an indication that the total number of people taking extension courses during the present school year ending July 1, 1931, will be in excess of the total for the last school year.

Director Rakestraw said that a large number of people enrolled during the past three months are taking more than one course, some of them taking three or more night classes. Statistics compiled as of July 1 of this year, covering the school year of 1929-30, reveal that a total of 7095 people registered in extension classes. Many of them registered in two or more classes, bringing the class enrollment to a total of 17,743. These figures cover only the activities of the Los Angeles office of the extension division.

LEPROSY MAY BE CURED BY FOOD

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—UP—Food and not medicine may be the weapon with which man finally conquers his ancient and much dreaded foe, leprosy.

Recent experiments in Japan indicate that developments of the disease may be prevented by the presence of vitamins in the diet, which increases the individual's resistance. Important studies supporting this theory have been reported by Dr. K. Shiga, baceriologist and dean of the Imperial Medical faculty at Seoul, Korea.

Other scientists and physicians have placed much reliance on Chaulmoogra oil as a treatment for the disease. In fact, too much has been claimed for this medicine, Dr. George W. McCoy, director of the U. S. national institute of health here, declares.

Actually this drug has a very limited usefulness. It is not certain that it is of any use at all in the treatment of the disease, but it is customary to use it because no one knows of anything better.

There have always been a few lepers, a small proportion of the total number of leper homes or colonies, who improved sufficiently to be discharged. These patients had reached a stage where they were no longer a danger to the community. The number of releases in recent years has increased greatly because health authorities everywhere are much more liberal in their requirements for the release of lepers, Dr. McCoy explained.

Dr. Shiga found that when he injected leprosy bacilli in normal healthy rats, they did not develop disease. Later, after their food had been deprived of vitamins, they soon had leprous sores. From this it appears that lack of vitamins in the diet accounts for susceptibility of leprosy. If this theory is proved to be true, leprosy can be prevented by proper diet, and the cure of it may also be accomplished by dietary measures.

Robberies Become Tiresome To Woman

OAKLAND, Oct. 24.—UP—The monotony of hold-ups is growing upon Mrs. Gertrude Silva, proprietor of the small shop here.

Mrs. Silva reported her 24th hold-up in two years to detectives today and gave answers to all their routine questions before they could be asked.

"I don't mind them any more," she said. "Whenever a man comes in with a tense look in his eyes and his right hand jammed in his pocket, I know the proper procedure. I simply walk to the back of the store and let him open the cash register. They seldom get more than $5 or $6."

Weds Stepmother, Wins Annulment

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—UP—Proof that his wife never divorced his father was offered by Frank Addiego here today to gain an annulment of his marriage in superior court here today.

Addiego said he had married his stepmother 20 years ago. He said she had completed preliminary details of a divorce from his father when she was in Italy in 1906 but had never gone back to gain the final decree.

The complaint also charged his wife had remained a stepmother to him, scolding and disciplining him.

A physiotherapy department in which all kinds of sun-ray treatments can be given was also installed. The south end of the building was stuccoed during the year. During the past 12 months the hospital has been handling the city's emergency cases.

The hospital is conducted by a staff of ten nurses. Mrs. Elizabeth Redmond Town is general superintendent. Miss Margaret Hentsch is in charge of the physiotheraphy department, while Mrs. Elizabeth Rosier and Mrs. Mary Anaclerio are in charge of the office.

Big Bill Snubbed By G. O. P. Group

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—UP—Relations between the Cook county Republican organization and Mayor William Hale Thompson, one of its most powerful factional leaders, were definitely broken today over the sesatorial candidacy of Ruth Hanna McCormick.

Led by chairman Bernard W. Snow, the county committee voted late Thursday to remain regular and in so doing chose to ignore Thompson's bolt from Mrs. McCormick, the head of the ticket. In approving a campaign circular to be used during the rest of the campaign, the committee directed that the words "Vote the Straight Republican Ticket Nov. 4" be added at the end of the leaflet.

Art Students Given Pre-view Of Furnitures

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24.—Art students of the University of California at Los Angeles have just been given a "pre-view" showing of a new type of furniture which it is expected will soon be manufactured and offered for general sale. The furniture will be known as "steel tubing" furniture, being manufactured from steel tubing of both the round and square variety.

The display on the campus was supervised by Ben-Mur Helph, an art analist, who is well known on the Pacific coast. During the display of furniture, in the north auditorium of the education building, he demonstrated the practicability of the designs, calling attention to their simplicity, durability, and comfort and adaptability. The display was arranged under the supervision of Mrs. Louise P. Sooy, chairman of the art department.

HOOVER MUM ON REPORT OF BEER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—UP—An attitude of silence is being maintained at the White House in the face of rumors that President Hoover and his law enforcement commission soon may recommend 4.40 percent beer.

Unofficially the reticence of the administration high command is explained by the imminence of the congressional election in which prohibition is such an outstanding issue. Privately, those in authority here suggest the unverified report may have been spread by those interested in promoting the wet cause at the polls.

The administration leaders wish to avoid any possible charge of aiding either side with affirmations or denials, they say.

There is, however, a strong indication in the highest quarters that the Wickersham commission is contemplating a report which may not be acceptable to some extremely dry organizations.

The report is scheduled to be in the hands of the president by the middle of November and may be sent to congress when it reconvenes the early part of December.

The 4.40 percent alcoholic content figure has not before been mentioned. One-half of 1 per cent is allowed by the Volstead act.

THE WOMAN OF IT

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall

What Some Women Are Doing Today

WITH all the talk about women in business—and there are 10,000,000 in "gainful occupations," according to the 1930 census—what are women actually doing in this field?

It is a question often asked by those who hear or read enthusiastic generalities about the modern woman's achievements. To list these achievements, individually and specifically, would require so much research and so many columns that a complete survey seems impossible. But the Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries in New York this week, together with the appearance of the first issue of the magazine Woman in Business, combine to give interesting birdseye glimpses of what successful women are doing today.

MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

Everything in the Exposition's two hundred booths represents the work of women—often in businesses owned and managed by them. And "everything" ranges from perfumery to pickles, from baby clothes to electrical appliances, from silversmithing to selling automobiles.

The First Lady of New York State, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, is a successful business woman, and shows reproductions of early American furniture made at the Val Kill Shop which she and two women associates conduct.

Miss Anna E. E. Schneider of Baltimore displays whole wheat flour from her own mill, which she started as a one-woman venture — milling the flour, packing it for shipping, selling it. She is said to be the only woman miller in the United States.

Another "only one" among the successful women at the Exposition is Miss Margaret Ingalls, woman air engineer.

IN that lively publication, Woman In Business, we discover the following notes of odd and interesting things which notable women are doing:

Mary Bendelari, an American girl, is conducting her own shoe business in Paris, and combines American shoe-comfort with French design and workmanship.

A New Yorker, Miss Elizabeth Watson, has found success in the novel and interesting job of exhibit expert. One of her vividly pictorial exhibits to illustrate "safety first" is now being shown under the direction of Frances Perkins, New York State Industrial Commissioner.

Another New Yorker, Sally Durham Hanshue, is a convention engineer. She organizes conventions and congresses for such big national bodies as the Children's Bureau and the Red Cross.

Dr. Frances Hurd Clark is metallographist for the Western Union Telegraph Company. Her job is the careful examination and testing of all metals and new tools before they are used by the company.

Four women, Mrs. Ernest Miller, Mrs. I. H. Larom, Mrs. Al Croonquist, Mrs. Jack Davis, are successfully running "dude ranches" in Montana and Wyoming, for the accommodation of tenderfeet who want to go Wild West.

Mrs. A. H. Park and Miss Mabel Gieseck own and operate a plantation of 1,292 acres, a store and a cotton gin in what formerly were Alabama wastelands.

Miss Helen Dryden, distinguished artist and illustrator, is now designing pianos, metal accessories for automobile interiors and silk and linen for textile houses.

The old-fashioned woman's business of baking has been so expanded into big business by Mrs. L. M. Flowe that she makes bread, biscuits and cake for the grocery stores of her native North Carolina.

Miss Mildred Johnson, of New York, having flown without accident 65,000 air miles as traveler and pilot, now conducts an air travel bureau.

THESE dozen examples—and the number could be multiplied enormously—of "women who do" at least illustrate tangibly and definitely how varied and far-flung is feminine activity nowadays. As Mary V. Robinson, of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor, wrote recently: "There has been a steady infiltration of women into so many fields of work that now it may be said that woman's place is everywhere. Woman doctors and lawyers have become a common story, and more arresting now are the women who are managers and superintendents of factories, bankers and bank officials, chemists, clergymen, judges, inventors, engineers and architects."

THE ONLOOKERS

We are not halt or maimed or blind,
We ask no alms and make no cry;
Yet we might claim your pity, too
For life, the giver, has passed us by.

Life, that brought burdens of love to you
And broached the deep wells of your heart,
We sought to evade, and danced and laughed,
While others fulfilled the toilers' part.

We are the ones whom you think so free,
In luck to escape life's hard demands,
With money to squander and time to kill—
Yet we are the ones with empty hands.

What the Modern Husband Should Know

Husbands, it is reported from the Home Making Center of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs, often attend the center's cooking classes in the Grand Central Palace, in order to watch their wives prepare dinner scientifically. Well, maybe. And maybe the husbands attend because the wives think that HUSBANDS should get a line on preparing dinner scientifically.

FACT

First love is tender, calm and sweet,
First love puts wings on leaden feet.

First love is poets' rhapsody,
First love is music's harmony.

First love is fresh and clean and bright,
First love brings pleasant dreams at night.

First love's a heav'nly tower, above
Which nothing soars but second love.

A DISH A DAY

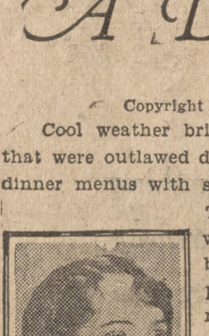
Cool weather brings back to our tables many oven-dinner specialties that were outlawed during the summer. No longer do we need to plan our dinner menus with special emphasis on foods that are light and piquant.



KAREN HOLLIS

The first cold weather brings back hearty appetites and a demand for more substantial food. Strangely enough, and to the delight of the housewife who likes to budget her time as well as her money economically, substantial cold weather dinners require no more time for their preparation than the lighter ones of summer. Sometimes they require even less time, as in the case of this simple grilled dinner.

Pork, that long neglected meat, comes into favor as soon as cold weather returns. And pork tenderloin is first choice of the cook who wants to devote no more than forty-five minutes to the entire preparation of dinner.

The following dinner can all be cooked in the oven, but is better if the meat and tomatoes are grilled in the broiler, the apples and sweet potatoes baked in the oven.

PORK TENDERLOIN GRILL

1½ pounds pork tenderloin
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon peppe
¼ cup flour
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 cup milk
4 apples
4 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons butter
Water
½ teaspoon cinnamon
4 sweet potatoes
½ teaspoon salt
Paprika
2 tablespoons butt
½ cup water
4 tomatoes
Salt and pepper
4 tablespoons buttered bread crumbs
2 tablespoons grated onion

Prepare the apples first, as they will require the longest time for cooking. Peel and core the apples, and if they are large, cut them in half. Arrange in a baking dish, sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and dot with butter. Even if the apples are of the very sour greening variety, add sugar sparingly, for they should be tart rather than sweet when served as a relish with meat. Add just enough water to cover the bottom of the baking dish. Bake in a moderate oven.

Pork tenderloin and sweet potatoes will require about the same length of time for cooking, so they should be prepared next. If you want to add a green vegetable to this dinner, spinach is a good choice, and can be cooked in the oven in the same time required for broiling the meat.

Have the tenderloin Frenched at the butcher shop, or, if preferred, cut in individual portions yourself and flatten each one. Wipe dry, then sprinkle with Worcestershire sauce. Rub with salt and pepper, then dip in flour. Place in a shallow baking pan and add milk. Cook under the broiler flame for twenty-five to thirty minutes, or until meat is thoroughly cooked and browned on both sides.

Peel the sweet potatoes and cut them in thick slices lengthwise. Arrange on a baking dish, sprinkle with salt and paprika, dot with butter, add one-half cup water and place in a moderate oven.

The tomatoes are added last, as they require only about ten minutes to cook. Wash, remove the stem end and cut in half. Do not peel. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, spread with buttered bread crumbs and grated onion, put in a shallow baking dish and put in the broiler. During the last five minutes of cooking, the potatoes can be taken from the oven and put in the broiler to brown.

Modernizing the Home

Placing Small and Middle-Sized Rugs

By Alma Zaiss

Dear Miss Zaiss:

* * * I have a "C" apartment on the fourth floor which is not very light because of a four-story house next door, but there is a possibility of my getting the same type apartment on the sixth floor in October. I am inclosing a floor plan and a list of my furniture, and would you be so good as to give me some help in arrangement?

At present I have the gateleg table in the foyer, but it is rather crowded when the door is opened. I have thought of putting one of the sectional bookcases there instead.

In the dinette against the wall toward the kitchen I have a very lovely tiny chest of drawers with an old mirror over it. This is my prize possession and can be seen from the living room. On the wall toward the foyer I have a Duncan Phyfe type of folding card table, and two Windsor chairs complete the furnishing of this tiny room.

As you see, the rug is too small, and I do not know whether it would be better to try to find smaller rugs to go with this rug or discard it altogether and get a broadloom carpet approximately the size of the room. I want something that can be taken up in the summer so I can put down grass rugs and slipcover my furniture in summery chintz. In this way I have a "country" and "city" home, and I find it helps a lot. What color carpet would you suggest?

With many thanks for your help,
I am (Miss) M. O'G.

Two Problems, Including Suggestions for Carpeting

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

SO that the new booklet, Covering the Modern Floor, may be of the greatest interest and assistance, we shall also emphasize the subject of rugs, carpets and other floor coverings in the problems published twice weekly, carrying the topic along with general recommendations, however, in order to illustrate in an individual way the possibilities of different floor treatments. Today two readers in need of advice about rugs will be answered briefly; the second problem is the one illustrated.

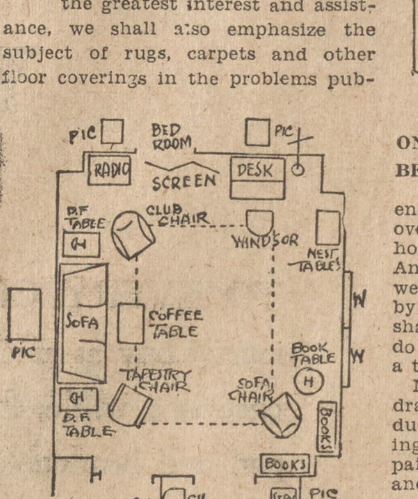

DIAGRAM FOR PROBLEM NO. 1

That part of Miss O'G.'s letter which concerns arrangement she will find completely answered by the scaled diagram which shows our ideas regarding the placement of furniture. If the gateleg table is a small one and is placed with its two leaves down, it should not take up any more room in the foyer than would the sectional bookcases, for which we have found such a nice corner in the living room that we should like to retain them.

Miss O'G.'s color scheme for curtains and upholstering sounds very pleasing and forms a good background for her Oriental rug, which, it is true, is much too small for the room. She should either discard the rug in favor of a broadloom carpet or room-size rug which she can take up in summer, or cover the floor with plain carpeting and use the Persian rug in the center as indicated on the diagram. The 7x10 rug is large enough to be used in this fashion over carpet—but not large enough to hold the center of the stage alone. And under no circumstances would we try to piece out the floor covering by adding more small Orientals. The shape of the room and its groupings do not lend themselves well to such a treatment.

Miss O'G. has wood-brown velvet draperies and upholstering in subdued and harmonious tones, including rose. If she will have the walls painted a mellow parchment shade and for her foundation rug get soft green carpeting in a lighter tone than the sofa, she will find her rose colored Persian rug is in splendid harmony with the scheme and that it contributes a welcome bit of color and design.

IN MISS A'S ROOM IT WOULD BE MUCH BETTER TO PLACE THE ONE SMALL HOOKED RUG NEAR THE DESK. BEFORE THE LONG DAYBED IT WOULD SEEM TOO UNIMPORTANT

PROBLEM NO. 2

Dear Miss Zaiss:

You have helped so many people to make rooms prettier without spending a great amount, I wonder if you could not give me some suggestions to brighten up my one lone room. It seems so dull and uninteresting, and above all so colorless. It is a small rented room (I am a business girl).

I have in it a daybed and a maple chest with mirror above it; one stuffed chair and a straight back chair for the maple desk. I would like to get a reading table of some sort; what type would you think best, a gateleg? The walls of this room are cream. The floor has a grayish carpet on it which the landlady let stay down. It is in good condition, but seems terribly sombre. I got a very small hooked rug, thinking it would help, but it seems lost in front of the daybed. You could also help me with suggestions for little knickknacks to add interest,

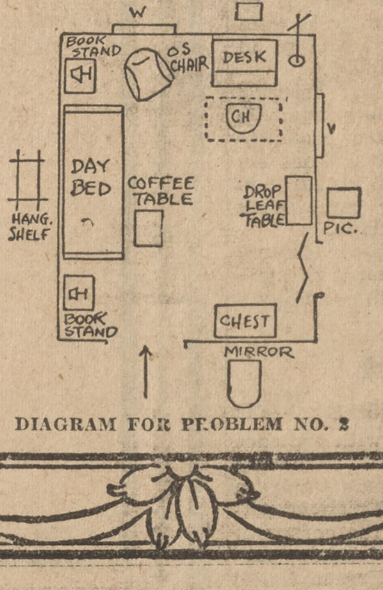

DIAGRAM FOR PROBLEM NO. 2

MISS A.'s little room troubles her because of its dullness and lack of interesting detail. The diagram shows a good arrangement of the furniture she describes, to which we have added a screen, two little book tables or stands and a hanging shelf, a coffee table and the gateleg or dropleaf table Miss A has intended to buy. She should be able to find a nice little gateleg in maple at $15 to $25. The hanging shelf could be bought unfinished and painted a soft blue-green, and the small maple tables need not be expensive. The screen can also be bought unfinished and covered with an inexpensive scenic paper that has a deep buff ground with hunting scenes in blue-green and a bit of red.

Then for the daybed cover it would be nice to use an India print having a pattern that shows deep reds and blue-greens and golds in the design. Very effective spreads of this type can be found at $3.95.

Visualizing these suggestions as carried out, we now have interesting color and design on the two side walls and the floor is no longer so dull as it was, since the two colorful pieces—the daybed and the screen—have come to rest upon it. The too-small hooked rug would appear to advantage if placed at the end of the room before the desk, about as indicated in the photograph.

Curtains of plain red chintz finished with little pleated ruffles would look very perky at these windows. And for her accessories Miss A. may find several good suggestions in the photograph. Quaint prints above the desk; a pewter oil-type lamp with a simple parchment shade; pewter inkpots; a blue-green scrap basket with an old-time print depicting a 'squire with the inevitable top hat and red "weskit"—such inexpensive trifles, together with the red and green, buff and blue backs of books on the hanging shelf and a gay print above the dropleaf table, will give Miss A. such a good measure of cheer and comfort that she will quite forget that she is living in a small rented room

Good Use for Tin Cans

Save the empty tin cans. They make excellent chimney cleaners. If you use pea coal in the furnace, fill several cans (you can use half a dozen at a time) with the coal and lay these on the firebed. They will be entirely consumed and the chemical action taking place during the burning will clean the chimney. If this is done every two weeks the chimney will keep clean.

The cans may also be used in the kitchen range and are useful to prevent a chimney fire that may result from an extremely hot fire in the range. Two or three empty cans will be sufficient for this purpose.

This is a good way to dispose of the accumulation of tin cans and having a clean chimney assures a good draft and reduced danger of fires.

Satin Smoothness for Your Lips

NOW is the season when lips grow dry and sometimes crackly, when lipstick tends to cake and flake and most mouths lose the flower smoothness which is one of their chief charms.

FRANCES OLIVIER

Change of temperature is very largely to blame, of course. But the quality of the lipstick used has much to do with the roughness or smoothness of the lips, and so also has one's mannerisms.

There are more people with the lip moistening habit than ever suspect themselves! People who bite their lips, people who wet their lips, but would vigorously deny the mannerism were they accused.

Needless to say, such habits are neither beautiful nor beautifying. Moreover they not only coarsen the texture of the lips, but they actually enlarge them. Let the chapped lip cases keep a watchful eye on their mannerisms, especially the unconscious mannerisms!

As suggested before, dry lips demand a change of lipstick, a change to a smoother, more soothing, softening lipstick texture—even if it means the sacrifice of a favorite shade. In some cases it may be necessary to omit lipstick altogether for a few days, substituting a lip pomade made specially for chapped lips. Gum camphor is excellent for restoring the satiny surface to lips that have been dried out by unsuitable lipstick, unbeautifying mannerisms or autumn chill.

And while we are on this topic—a much more important one than most women seem to realize—there is no economy in using cheap or inferior grades of lipstick. A lipstick of good color, pure quality and soft, smooth texture, is not to be picked up for tuppence. And when to all these other characteristics indelibility is added, then one must expect to pay for it.

There are those who hesitate about using an indelible lipstick for fear of drying after-effects. But the better type indelible lipsticks do not produce any such after-effects—a cosmetic feat, to be sure, but achievable by experts and attainable by those willing to pay the price. When a conscientious lipstick creator uses coloring matter that lasts from dark to dawn he must be generous with his other ingredients, meaning his oils and creams.

One of the reasons why some women prefer cream rouge for the lips is obviously because it is softer, and, therefore, more softening and soothing than the average lipstick. Another hint to the lady suffering from dry lips and to the skeptic where indelible lipsticks are concerned.

THE RODNEY BINKS MURDER CASE

(A Detective Story to End All Detective Stories)

SYNOPSIS of what has happened so far: Rodney Binks, a wealthy clubman, was found murdered in his library. Hilo Jack, the super-superdetective, was called in on the case and that's all you need to know.

HILO JACK put the stethoscope to his ears and placed the transmitter of the instrument against the baby grand piano. He sounded several different notes, moving the stethoscope to various parts of the piano as he listened intently.

"It's pretty nearly in tune," he said, "but there's a little congestion just above the fifth octave. This means a piano tuner hasn't been near here for at least two weeks, so that absolves him."

"Well, there's one man eliminated," said Hennessy. "We're closing in on the murderer now, and hope to make an arrest within the next twenty-four hours."

"Spoken like a true policeman," said Hilo Jack.

Then he leaned over the dead man's body and examined the rug beneath the fractured skull. "There's a pool of blood here, Hennessy," said the great detective. "Hand me a four-ounce bottle."

"Take this—it's twice as much," said Hennessy, passing him his half-pint flask. "But I know it's empty."

"That's O. K." said Hilo Jack, scooping blood from the pool into the flask.

"Hey, what are you doing?" yelled the startled sergeant.

"I am putting the blood from Rodney Binks's skull into this flask," said the great detective, calmly. "I will have this blood analyzed to determine whether it's from a bull or a bear pool."

"Bedad!" said the amazed sergeant.

"But I am sure it will prove to be a bull pool," droned Hilo Jack nonchalantly, "because Rodney Binks's brains were dashed out in an upward swing."

"Begorra, he's marvelous!" muttered Hennessy.

A sudden knock on the door and District Attorney Glutz entered the case. Glutz nodded coldly to Hilo Jack and turned to Sergt. Hennessy for a resume of the murder of the wealthy dry toast importer. Hennessy gave him the facts.

"Humph," sniffed the district attorney, "it's an open and shut case against the Anglo-Japanese butler. Arrest Sahara at once, sergeant."

"Bedad and begorra these handcuffs is getting hot from snapping on and off Sahara's wrists," muttered Hennessy. "I've already arrested him twice."

"Arrest him again and keep him under arrest," ordered the district attorney.

Hilo Jack, who up to this time had taken no part in the conversation, chuckled lightly and said: "Don't be a fool, Glutz. Sahara did not commit this crime."

"Don't call me a fool," snapped the district attorney. "There's enough evidence to send Sahara to the chair or to the gallows if there's standing room only. Don't be a fool yourself."

"As you will," said Hilo Jack calmly, "but I assure you in spite of all incriminating evidence that the butler did not commit the crime."

"What makes you think so?" asked Glutz.

"Because," said Hilo Jack, measuring his words, "I never enter any murder mystery where you can tell right off the bat who the killer is and I don't intend to begin now."

"You're such a smart aleck," leered the district attorney, "maybe you can tell who the murderer is now."

"I will within a few hours," said Hilo Jack calmly. "So far I have learned, the crime was committed at 11 o'clock last night by a man who plays the accordion expertly, but who is not a piano tuner. In a couple of hours I shall have such copper-riveted clues that you can find the murderer in the telephone directory. As a matter of fact, he is in the telephone directory now—I mean the spring and summer edition—but I don't quite yet know his name or his number."

"I'll bet you don't even know his exchange," sniffed the district attorney.

"I admit I do not," said Hilo Jack confidently, "but wait 'till I find a few more clues."

(What important clues did Hilo Jack uncover? A complete layout will be given in tomorrow's heaping chapter of this great murder mystery. Tell your newsboy to save you a clue.)

School nurse says all girls should know this

TALKING to a roomful of high school girls on personal hygiene, an experienced district nurse said: "One of the basic rules of health for girls is to keep the system functioning naturally at all times. Normal exercise and diet habits should be encouraged. But when necessary there's no harm in taking nujol, since it works mechanically and can't disturb the normal functions of any organ of the body. Particularly with girls, there are times when nujol should always be taken. Take a spoonful every night for a few days. It's a thoroughly safe and harmless method. It won't cause distress or gas pains or griping."

Nujol is different from any other substance. It contains no drugs or medicine. It can be taken safely no matter how you are feeling because it is so pure and harmless, and works so easily. Every woman should keep a bottle on hand. Every druggist has this remarkable substance. Get the genuine.

duced and which was passed by the legislature.

Pledges Support

He declared that if elected to the post of congressman he would support the bill now before congress that would make Saturdays a half holiday.

Senator Inman declared that he did not believe the people of this district should elect a man through sympathy, but that a man who was fitted to the post by years of legislative experience as he was, should be elected.

He said that years ago his father fought in the Indian wars but he wasn't a congressman.

To Aid District

In closing his address, Senator Inman declared: "There will never be one act or vote of mine cast except to advance the interest of my district, and that of Mare Island and the men and women employed there."

The senator was introduced by B. A. Brown, vice president of the Central Labor council who said, "I now take pleasure in introducing Senator J. M. Inman, for whom we passed a resolution of support earlier in the week."

Before appearing at the union meeting, Senator Inman was guest at the session of the Temple Club of Masons at the Vallejo Masonic temple, where he was warmly greeted.

Labor Unanimous

A few days ago the Central Labor council adopted resolutions indorsing the candidacy of Inman, and this was followed the next day by a similar resolution in favor of Inman by the Vallejo Building Trades council. The Central Labor council's membership represents thirty nine labor organizations.

The action of the building trades council, following the action of the Centrtl Labor council, makes the endorsement of Senator Inman practically unanimous in so far as Solano county labor organizations are concerned.

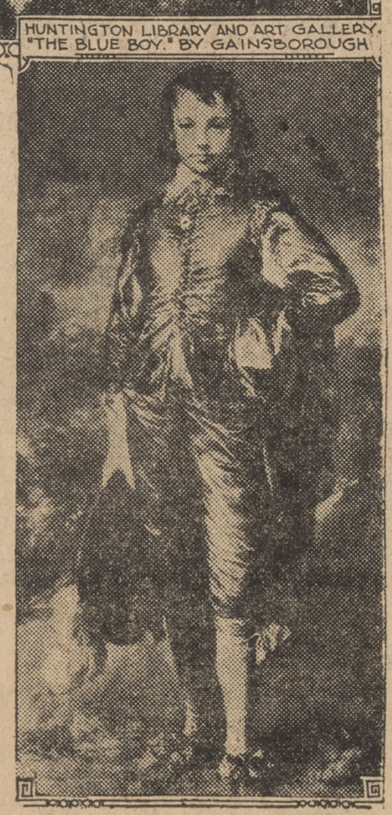
FREE HUNTINGTON LIBRARY FROM TAXATION



HUNTINGTON LIBRARY AND ART GALLERY. "THE BLUE BOY." BY GAINSBOROUGH

THE late Henry E. Huntington gave in trust for the people, the great Huntington Library and Art Gallery, and created a trust fund for its support as "a free Public Library, Art Gallery, Museum and Park for the advancement of learning, and to promote the public welfare."

It is a library of libraries—a collection of collections. It comprises 175,000 separate titles of printed books and about 800,000 manuscripts. It contains the vellum Gutenburg Bible, a remarkable Shakespeare collection and more than 5300 titles of books printed on movable type before the year 1501.

It contains, among other treasures, the Gainsborough "Blue Boy"; Reynolds' "Tragic Muse"; and Romney's "Lady Hamilton."

A. S. W. Rosenbach, probably the greatest living authority, says—

> ". . . Mr. Henry E. Huntington was the greatest collector of books the world has ever known. The library will be the Mecca of students for all time."

The California Legislature placed on the ballot for the coming elections (Proposition No. 15) a Constitutional Amendment to free this property from taxation, just as Stanford University was freed some years ago, but added the safeguard that the legislature may revoke the exemption at any time. This amendment is specifically endorsed by the California Taxpayers Association and merits the support of the voters. Vote Yes.

NEW RIOTS IN GERMANY SEEN

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—UP—Shifts in the Prussian cabinet and in the Berlin police force this week were regarded today as indicative of a feeling that further and possibly more serious outbreaks would occur during the approaching winter.

The changes places Carl Severing back in office as minister of interior, while Albert Grzesinski became head of the Berlin police.

Both these men have reputations for severity and strength — are known as "iron men" who will be willing to take ahrsh measures if necessary to suppress violence apparently feared from radical elements.

The present metal workers' strike involving 140,000 men and other indications of labor unrest have given rise to clashes in the past few weeks which may become more serious as unemployment increases, it was pointed out. This together with the country's financial depression has resulted in what many regard as a political and economic crisis that might threaten democracy in the young German republic.

Despite the victory of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening in the Reichstag, the political supremacy of the present administration is not regarded as too secure. The Fascists, headed by the turbulent Adolph Hitler, may be counted on to stir up further trouble, persons close to the government fear, in an effort to overthrow Bruening and seek to establish a Fascist dictatorship.

Dr. Joseph Wirth, interior minister in the Reich administration, addressing a convention of civil servants, warned against a Fascist dictatorship. He declared it would rob them of their freedom and appealed to the "fascist minded" members of the civil service voluntarily to resign.

Dr. Wirth added that, as has been indicated, the government was ready to use force if necessary to crush the "enemies of the state."

REBELS DEMAND RESIGNATION OF LUIS

aged when the mob set it afire.

The Federalist generals who led the Junta had been loyal to the administration during the civil war which broke out earlier this month. They turned against President Luis today, however, insisting he relinquish office to prevent further bloodshed.

Successor Named

A military committee was organized among the generals responsible for the coup d'etat. General Leite De Castro, chief of the Junta or committee, was scheduled to succeed President Luis in the new regime, at least temporarily.

Gen. Juarez Tavora, 32-year old northern Revolutionary leader, however, flew to Rio De Janeiro from the north. He arrived late today and was acclaimed head of the rebel group in control of the city tonight.

The connection between these generals and the rebel leaders in the south was not clear. There appear a possibility that Tavora merely had stepped in between the coutherners, headed by Getulio Vargas, and the Federalists, and with the aid of local garrison commanders was seeking to establish a new government.

Army Revolts

The triumph of the revolt in Rio De Janeiro came swiftly after a night of tense expectancy.

The rebellion was actually begun at 3 a. m. when the 3rd regiment of infantry, first regiment of cavalry and field and heavy artillery groups combined to demand the resignation of President Luis.

The garrison at Fort Copacabana joined the movement. Its guns boomed over the bay at dawn, signalizing the beginning of the revolt.

Duster Asked

President Luis was handed an ultimatum demanding that he resign. A threat that the city would be bombarded was the alternative He was understood to have been granted guarantees of safety if he would quit office peacefully, avoiding further bloodshed.

The report was then circulated that President Luis had acceded to the demands and resigned at 9:40 a. m. Confusion attached to the executive's movements during the hours which followed. He was reported to have fled to the sancity of the Italian embassy after the United States ambassador, E. V. Morgan, was said to have refused to accept the executive's request for asylum.

These and other rumors filled the capital as the populace, awakening to find the revolt in their midst, ran into the streets and took possession of the city. Airplanes flew overhead, dropping revolutionary propaganda pamphlets.

Revolt Starts

Bugles and the booming of guns at Fort Copacabana rent the still morning air as the revolution begun. The sound of the guns added to the wild excitement as dawn broke.

The mystified capital witnessed a formidable display of troops which they assumed to be federalist but were in reality already revolutionary. Troops patrolled the suburban districts, isolating the downtown section of the city. Traffic was prohibited, with the exception of troop movements.

The drama of the revolt proceeded behind the scenes, but as the morning passed the people took things into their own hands. Rioting broke out shortly before noon.

Office Wrecked

A mob entered the newspaper A Note building, one of the most handsome plants in South America and wrecked the luxurious offices of the director, Geraldo Rocha. Rocha, one of the wealthiest men in Brazil, was not present.

They heaved the furniture into the street, and set it afire. Several persons were hurt during this and subsequent attacks on half a dozen other newspapers, but casualties were few.

The damage done to various newspaper plants was estimated at upwards of $1,000,000. The government organ, O Paiz, was among the plants sacked and burned. Other newspapers damaged during the mob riots were the Vanguarda, A Noticia, Gazeta De Noticias, Critica and A Ordem. All but the last named were favorable to the Luis administration, and were sought out by the people and sacked apparently for that reason.

Festive Air

After burning and destroying these seven newspapers, most of which it was believed would be forced to cease publishing until repairs could be made, the mob went singing and marching along the broad avenue Rio Branco, acclaiming the success of the revolution.

Thousands of people poured into the capital from the outlying idstricts. The city took on a festive aspect, the populace continuously marching up and down the treelined, beautiful avenues of Rio de Janeiro.

The parades were dotted with red flags, red headbands and red handkerchiefs and ties. Automobiles sped along, overloaded with celebrants carrying large red motor blankets.

Peace Near

The predominance of red marked the parades, lending color despite the dark, rainy day.

Partial peace had been restored this evening, when well organized patrols were placed in the business districts and residential centers to avert further mob disorders.

At the military headquarters, in the hands of the revolting leaders since morning, the United Press correspondent was assured the disturbances were well in hand and that the capital would be entirely tranquil by tomorrow, with business houses open as usual.

Many Arrested

Many members of the Luis government sought asylum in foreign legations. Vice President Mello Vianna, however, and the minister of war, Gen. Nestor Zesefredo Dos Passos, were arrested this afternoon.

The revolutionary government issued a manifesto signed by Gen. Menna Barreto, one of the generals at the head of today's action. The document, explaining the revolt, declared the "pacifying forces of land and sea" had taken the situation into their own hands as a protest against the civil war.

French Fliers Return To Paris

LE HAVRE, France., Oct. 24.—UP— Dieudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, the men of the Question Mark, returned to their homeland today and received the cheers of 100,000 persons lining the streets of Normandy cities.

Seldom has any private venture received such a clamorous tribute but France was determined to greet its celebrated airmen much as the United States roared a welcome to Lindbergh.

During the official reception, Mme. Coste, beautiful Georgian princess, suffered an attack of hysterics and was carried to a room in the town hall to regain composure. The attack was believed due to reports circulating in New York regarding the Costes' marital status.

In that connection Danielle Bregis, pretty actress who arrived on the same steamer as the fliers, said she had received "many radio messages" congratulating her on erroneous reports of a "secret marriage" to Coste.

"We are good friends, only," Mlle. Bregis told the United Press in Paris tonight, "one never knows what will happen some day but there is no question of an engagement at present."

A WANT AD IN THE RECORD-HERALD WILL DO THE WORK

COURT BATTLE IN MURDER OF TOT

DENVER, Colo., Oct. 24.—UP—The Leona O'Laughlin murder case settled down tonight to a battle of attorneys in open court.

Prospects of a speedy solution of the mysterious slaying of the ten-year-old daughter of Leo O'Loughlin, a city detective, through a written confession appeared to have vanished.

Secret sessions of detectives with Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, stepmother of Leona, gave way today to maneuvers in district court between representatives of the district attorney's office and her counsel.

A bill of information was filed in district court charging Mrs. O'Loughlin and Frank O'Loughlin, uncle of the dead girl, with first degree murder.

Case Weak

At the time the uncle was formally named in the bill of information it was said at the district attorney's office that the case against him was a weak one.

Request was made by Leo O'Loughlin that the brother be named in the charges as the speediest way of clearing him of inferences of Mrs. O'Loughlin that he had a part in the crime.

Immediately after the formal charges were presented to District Judge James C. Starkweather, a hearing was held on a petition for a writ of habeas corpus for the step-mother.

Writ Denied

The petition was denied. Then John M. Keating, defense attorney, sought a court order to prevent police from "further persecution and questioning of his client."

Ralph J. Cummins, assistant district attorney, vigorously protested the move. Heated argument O'Loughlin had been subjected O'loughlin had been subjected to third degree methods in an effort to wrest a confession from her. Keating's request was denied.

Arraignment of Mrs. O'Loughlin and the uncle was set for 10 a.m. tomorrow.

Leona O'Loughlin disappeared on the night of Oct. 14. Her body was found three days later in the lake at Berkeley park. She had been severely beaten on the head. Ground glass was found in the stomach when the viscera was examined.

Time Asked

The father, Leo O'Loughlin, was taken mysteriously ill at police headquarters the night Leona vanished. His illness later was found to be due to the effects of eating ground glass.

A dog and a cat that were fed scraps from the O'Loughlin table died. Ground glass was found in their bodies.

At the arraignment tomorrow attorneys for Mrs. O'Loughlin are expected to ask further time before a formal plea to the murder charge is entered.

Character Security for Loans

The Mechanics Bank plan has made it possible for a person of good character, steadily employed, to obtain money through endorsement, that is, the signing of a promissory note, by two of his friends. No physical property is required.

We loan on the reputation and character and earning ability of the borrower and his two comakers.
